

Published: February 28, 2013

Home / news /

Plans For A New City Park

By Staff

Students and community leaders in Greenville are working on designs for a New City Park.

The park stems from the city's potential relocation of the Public Works Operation to another site.

The current site is located on South Hudson Street near A-J Whittenberg Elementary.

The group says it's important for everyone to be involved in the process.

Organizers are going to work on the concept for the park over the next three months and then meet again.