

Call for Booth Applications

Date: Saturday, April 27 2013

Location: West Greenville Community Center

Time: 12PM – 3PM

The Spring & Green Fair will be geared primarily towards providing educational and demonstrational information relating to sustainability for residents in Greenville's West Side. As part of the Connections for Sustainability educational outreach efforts, the Spring & Green Fair will include booths related to a range of topics that provide residents with the tools to Live, Work, Play, and Grow more sustainably. Playing a crucial role, students from A J Whittenberg (AJW) Elementary School will be on hand to share information about their experiences as part of AJW's green teams and the Livability Educator's programming. From traditional Green topics like rain barrels and home energy efficiency, to hot topics like community gardens, healthy eating, and active living, the Spring & Green Fair will have something for everyone.

There is no charge to participate in the Spring and Green Festival, but booth space is limited.

Proposed booths should be related to a topic of sustainability and provide information, demonstration, or both. You are welcome to advertise your organization or business and provide cards, but we ask that the main role of your booth be to educate the public about a topic related to sustainability. In order to keep this event fun, fair, and accessible, we ask that you not sell any items or services at the event.

To apply, fill out the information below and email the completed application to Jaclin DuRant, Livability Educator, jdurant@greenvillesc.gov. Applications are due by March 28. We will announce selected booths by April 12.
